Floodlight Baseball: braille labels for swell paper

Print the next pages on swell paper (also called capsule or microcapsule paper), then run them through the heater. Only the black dots rise.

Each label goes on the front of one card, near the top. The labels come in the same order as the card sheets in the print and play kit: the action cards (two of each), the designated hitters, the Red team, the Blue team, the die charts and the rules cards. The small grey number and name under each label say which card it is.

A label is 9 braille cells wide and fits a 2.5 inch card. The braille is UEB grade 2. Dots: 1.5 mm across, 2.5 mm apart in a cell, cells 6.2 mm apart and lines 10 mm apart. Print at 100% (no "fit to page").

No swell paper? The file floodlight-braille-labels.brf has the same labels for a braille embosser, 15 to a page.
